A coalition of eight environmental groups which include the Environmental Defense Fund and A | A | A National Wildlife Federation say they have come up with the "Preparing For Sea Change In Florida" survival strategies to help save Florida's coast from future effects of global warming.

They say if we do not prepare for future sea changes to relieve significant stresses on Florida's coastal and marine ecosystem, the coast will continue to deteriorate.

Experts say we need to confront the impacts of sea level rise that global warming might cause.

Experts say the rise of sea levels could destroy beach front property which could cost Florida billions of dollars in annual revenues.
